

MENDING BROKEN RELATIONSHIPS

We live in a broken world. Our relationship with God is broken and often our relationship with others is in need of repair. A cause of grief - While a broken relationship may require long and professional help, there are some principles that can give us guidance.

1. Although the ideal is always difficult to reach, we must keep it before us. The second great commandment is, you should love your neighbor as yourself. We should never be content with less, even though it may not be obtainable in this life. God's perfect Will is always a loving relationship.
